<td>1898 &amp; 1912</td>
<td>The Quebec Boundaries Extension Act</td>
<td>The boundaries of Quebec were first extended north to the 52nd parallel by Canada. In 1912, Quebec’s boundaries were again extended, to Hudson Strait in the north and to Labrador in the east. The Cree, Inuit and Naskapi peoples inhabited these vast federal territories known as Rupert’s Land. This Act, which established the province’s current borders, carried certain obligations. The Quebec government was to reach an agreement with the Native communities on land-related issues. However, talks on these matters did not begin until 62 years later, after the Cree and Inuit of Quebec filed a motion to halt the James Bay hydro-electric development work begun in northern Quebec by the province.</td>

<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>Quebec Premier announces the James Bay Hydroelectric Project</td>
<td>On April 30, 1971, Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec announces plans for the “project of the century” – a $6 billion hydroelectric power project in the James Bay region -the largest such development undertaken in North America. Eeyou/Eenou of Eeyou Istchee were not consulted by Quebec on this proposed mega project plan. The construction of the dams would flood major Eeyou/Eenou hunting territories within Eeyou Istchee. This would have an effect on Eeyou/Eenou traditional way of life.</td>

<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>Judge Malouf orders stoppage of work on the James Bay Hydroelectric Project</td>
<td>On November 15, 1973, Judge Albert Malouf renders his historic decision in favour of Eeyou/Eenou of Eeyou Istchee (as well as the Inuit of Nunavik) and orders work on the James Bay Hydroelectric Development Project to stop on the basis of Eeyou and Inuit rights. This court decision was a major victory for the recognition of Eeyou/Eenou rights.</td>

<td></td>
<td>In the mid 1970’s, with the construction of the James Bay Hydroelectric Project, upstream rivers were diverted into La Grande watershed, increasing its flow significantly, potentially resulting in the erosion of Fort George Island and disruption to the formation of a solid ice cover in winter. In response, the Grand Council of the Crees negotiated the construction of a new community on the mainland’s south shore, and the relocation of the Fort George population and some 200 houses to the new site, Chisasibi.</td>

Agreements between Hydro-Québec, the Société d’énergie de la Baie James and the Crees of Québec which derived from the “Paix des Braves”:

Nadoshtin Agreement: Allows Hydro-Québec to build and operate the Eastmain-1 Project, as contemplated in the JBNQA. The agreement provides for the implementation of various environmental measures, including remedial and mitigating initiatives, with a view to reducing the impacts of the project on affected Crees.

Boumhounan Agreement: This agreement provides a framework for the Eastmain 1-A/Rupert Project. The Crees consent to the construction and operation of this project, in accordance with the terms set forth in the Boumhounan Agreement subject to the environmental and social protection regime described in Section 22 of the JBNQA. The Crees to be involved in the implementation of various environmental, mitigating and remedial works, measures and programs aimed at reducing the impacts of the project on affected Crees.

Cree Employment Agreement, or, Eeyou Apatisiiwin Niskamon: Under this agreement, Hydro-Québec reiterated its commitment to employ 150 Crees. In order to assist the Crees in obtaining temporary jobs in the James Bay region, the agreement provides for the implementation of incentives and temporary employment programs designed to alleviate the negative impacts of the La Grande complex on traditional Cree activities and to improve the Crees' use of affected areas. The Apatisiiwin Corporation was established to facilitate and foster the employment of Crees, to reduce barriers to employment, to create employment opportunities, to provide employment training and to create economic opportunities and jobs for Crees.

Mercury Agreement (2001): This Agreement follows the first agreement concerning mercury, signed by Hydro-Québec, the Québec government and the Crees in 1986. Under this Agreement, the Eeyou Namess Corporation, a joint non-profit company, was established to carry out studies, monitoring and research programs on health and the environment, as well as fishery restoration and development programs for the Crees.
